In Truly Madly Guilty, Liane Moriarty takes on the foundations of our lives: marriage, sex, parenthood, and friendship. She shows how guilt can expose the fault lines in the most seemingly strong relationships, how what we don't say can be more powerful than what we do, and how sometimes it is the most innocent of moments that can do the greatest harm.

Moriarty sets her plot in motion with a seemingly minor event at a suburban barbecue that leads her characters to examine and, in some cases, explode their relationships. The novel opens at a library as cellist Clementine Hart gives a speech entitled "One Ordinary Day," which she introduces saying that the story begins with a barbecue in an ordinary neighborhood in an ordinary backyard.
